Long Day's Journey into Night. by. Eugene O'Neill. Jonathan Cape. Thirty Bedford Square, London. First published in Great Britain June 1 1956 reprinted 1956, 1958, 1962. Sunshine comes through the windows at night. As the curtain rises, the family have just finished breakfast Mary Tyrone and her husband enter together from the back parlour, coming from the dining-room. Mary is fifty-four, about medium height She still has a young, graceful figure, a trifle plump, but showing little evidence of middle-aged waist and hips, although she is not tightly corseted Her face is distinctly Irish in type. London at night has always been seen as a lawless orgy of depravity and pestilence. But is it now as bland and unthreatening as any new town? Sukhdev Sandhu journeys across the city to find out whether the London night really has been rendered neutral by street lighting and CCTV cameras. His nocturnal forays see him prospecting in the London night with the people who drive its pulse, from the avian police to security guards, urban fox hunters and exorcists. He wades through the sewers, hangs out with pirate DJs, and accompanies the marine patrol looking for midnight corpses. Beautifully written
