

WALK THE WALK

Exhortations to Righteousness and
Daily Christian Living

By Robert Rushmore

Author's Note

We do not need to be scholars to study the Bible. We do, however, need to be aware that our English translations do not always capture the full intent of the Hebrew and Greek in which the Scriptures were originally penned. It is important to look to these original languages to ensure we properly understand the passages we study. To that end when Hebrew and Greek words are referenced the transliterated spelling and corresponding Strong's Concordance numbers are cited.

I encourage you to investigate these words for yourselves. The Strong's number reference system is standard for most Hebrew and Greek study tools. Strong's gives basic definitions while Vine's Dictionary tends to give a little more information on word usage. Thayer's Lexicon is somewhat technical, but a working knowledge of the Greek language is not necessary to benefit from the fuller definitions and the sense in which the words are used in various verses. Do not be afraid of these (and other) valuable resources.

My intent is not to be technical, but to make it easier for you, the readers, to take each lesson a little further as you continue to study the Word of God. Do not just take my word for it; search these things out for yourselves. The Bereans “were more noble than those in Thessalonica” for they “searched the scriptures daily, whether these things were so” (Acts 17:11). May we all do the same.

Twelve people have walked on the moon, but only one man - Philippe Petit (Joseph Gordon-Levitt) - has ever, or will ever, walk in the immense void between the World Trade Center towers.Â With innovative photorealistic techniques and IMAX 3D wizardry, The Walk is true big-screen cinema, a chance for moviegoers to viscerally experience the feeling of reaching the clouds.
